Here are examples of the four steps required to make the NASA Local Post stamps for the ASTP-75--The First International Space Mission. First, the green background is arranged on the page. Then, the black printing is aligned on a page. Next, the two colors are combined. Finally, the stamps are perforated. The NASA Local Post stamps are often found on covers or unused sheetlets but seldom in production steps. All sheets are in excellent condition. There are three punched holes in each probably for storage in a three ring binder.
